Ultrastructure of neuroglia in the cerebral hemispheres of Saimiri sciureus (Tucuman sciureus). The present study of the brain of Saimiri sciureus (Tucuman sciureus) has been made by means of light and electron microscopy. Neurons of the cerebral hemispheres display a stellate shape with a big number of synapses which could be classified into three types: symmetrical (14%), asymmetrical (82%) and both symmetrical and asymmetrical (4%). Presynaptic and postsynaptic specializations are formed by both smooth endoplasmic reticulum and smooth synaptic vesicles. The cytoplasm of the stellate neurons contains many organelles, such as mitochondria, lysosomes, Golgi apparatus, granular endoplasmic reticulum, polysomes, dense bodies and glycogen granules. These findings support the idea of a neuroglial association. The astrocytes are mainly stellate cells with slender processes, which form almost non-glial processes between neurons. The Schwann cells display characteristic features of myelination as a process that surround and orientate the neurons. Kineret Kineret or Qidronit (, "Clear") was a minor right-wing Israeli political party, founded by Avigdor Lieberman. Its members are mainly the followers of Shas and The United Torah Judaism parties. History The party was officially founded on 9 February 2014 as the successor to the Ratz Religious-Zionist Party, led by Lieberman's nephew Elisha Levi-Friedman. The party's chairwoman was to be the deputy mayor of Jerusalem Itamar Yogev. However, due to disagreements, Lieberman withdrew his support for the party. In June 2014 the party dissolved, and Lieberman announced his return to the Likud party, and plans to join the next Likud list for the 2015 elections. Lieberman is also expected to gain a seat in the next elections, as he was placed 24th on the Likud list, which has to be at least a Knesset member to have a seat. In the 2015 elections the party placed eighth on the Likud list, gaining 5 seats. It ran in the elections as the "Only Qidroni" alliance, with former MK Arye Deri as chairman. In the 2019 elections
