Photoshop CC Alternatives Installing Photoshop CC Alternatives If you're a professional photographer, video editor, graphic designer, or web designer, you may find yourself using Photoshop quite often. And that is why it is ideal to have a version of Photoshop that you can use instead of the one you have at your command. However, the original Photoshop is pretty expensive and extremely powerful, which makes it impossible to learn how to work on it, especially if you just want to edit photos on a small scale. Luckily, there are many other Photoshop alternatives on the market. Unlike the original Photoshop, some of these alternatives have unlimited use and are much cheaper than their original versions. 2. The Gimp The Gimp is a free, open-source alternative to Photoshop. It started as a one-man project by Fabrice 'FAB' Bertrand. Now it has many contributors (notably Richard 'MiKTeX' Lebeau). Its ability to edit and manipulate images and graphic design files is better than Photoshop, and it is incredibly user-friendly. This application is also very fast and easy to use. In fact, its user interface is in the style of a graphic designer or a photographer rather than a programmer. You will learn how to use the Gimp in this tutorial. Download Gimp Free Download Gimp 3. Photoshop Express Adobe Photoshop Express is a relatively new photo editor that requires an Adobe ID to use. Its goal is to give even amateur photographers the ability to edit and create high-quality images. Like the default version of Photoshop, it uses a hybrid approach for both editing and designing images. You can use this version of Photoshop for free, however, you will be limited to only 50 images and 150 MB of storage. Download Adobe Photoshop Express Free Download Adobe Photoshop Express 4. Adobe Photoshop Lightroom CC Adobe Lightroom CC is a powerful tool to have in your digital photography arsenal. It is also a major competitor to Adobe Photoshop. Lightroom CC is more easy 05a79cecff

THE Israeli student whose Facebook account was cracked and used to post pictures of him naked has offered his apology for any embarrassment caused to his family. Moni Levy Ben-Ari, 20, sent a message to his family on Facebook at midnight on Thursday, explaining the post which was lifted off his account had been sent by him without realising what had happened. "I'm sorry for the things I did, I'm sorry for all the embarrassment," he said in the post. He also said he would never post naked photos of himself and would never harm his family. The photos of Mr Levy were tagged on his profile which listed photos of him at play with friends and his Israeli soccer team. They showed the face of his muscular right leg exposed to the camera above his shorts. Mr Levy's sister Melanie said she did not know what happened as the photos were taken without her knowledge. She said he had tried to use the Facebook account to get a job as a web designer for his girlfriend, who he met while studying at University College London. He had stopped using the account since he returned from living in London last year, she said. The photos were taken on July 10 and 11, the same weekend as the Davis Cup tennis in the UK. Mr Levy is known as a supporter of Israel's national sport. He was described as "ardent and supportive of tennis and his country, the country where he studied and which he will one day represent", in a story on the website of the Davis Cup. He is seen playing tennis with a fellow Israeli, Shar Yaar, at the University of Kent's student centre in Whitstable. I'm sorry for the things I did, I'm sorry for all the embarrassment

Teaching lab safety during surgery. Unauthorized practice of medicine is defined as carrying out acts that are contrary to normal professional conduct. The consequences of such actions can be catastrophic for the patient. In this study, 22 surgical faculty and residents were surveyed to determine their compliance with regulations governing surgical safety and to identify areas of their personal and professional attitudes regarding safe surgery. Although all but one had received formal training in surgical safety, only 34% stated they had received continuing education since graduation. Although all respondents supported the regulation of surgical assistants, only 39% were aware of regulations, and only one had read them. Further, half of the respondents failed to take basic steps to maintain sterility before inc
